Our Legends

Alan Jackson

Alan Jackson

*"Where I Come From,
It's Cornbread and Chicken*

*Where I Come From,
It's Front Porch Pickin'"*

Country music star Alan Jackson's song catalog is full of remembrances of his childhood in Newnan, where many of his family members still reside. Alan graduated from Newnan High School. He met his wife, author Denise Jackson, at the Dairy Queen just a few blocks from historic downtown Newnan.

Jackson's first band, Dixie Steel (named for a brand of nails) performed throughout Coweta County before Alan's big break in 1989.

Margaret Anne Barnes

"You got bold boy! You got greedy!! You're starting to act like you're somebody"

-John Wallace

Margaret Anne Barnes' true-life tale of this notorious Southern trial recounts how the testimony of a black man led to the conviction of a powerful white man who was sentenced to death for murder. This landmark trial took place in the 1904 Coweta County Courthouse. The book was made into a movie starring Johnny Cash and Andy Griffith.

Lewis Grizzard

When Lewis was young he and his mother moved in with her parents in Moreland where he would spend his childhood. Grizzard would recount his often frustrating relationship with his father in My Daddy Was a Pistol and I'm a Son of a Gun. He began his writing early, publishing stories of his little league team in the Newnan Times Herald. He made Sprayberry's Barbecue (229 Jackson Street and Hwy. 34 at I-85, exit 47) famous through his newspaper columns. His favorite combo was a sliced pork sandwich, stew and onion rings—listed on the menu as the Lewis Grizzard Special.

Erskine Caldwell

Born in Moreland, he carried the earliest sense of place into his literature. One of the best selling writers of the early 20th century, a compatriot of Faulkner, Steinbeck, Fitzgerald and Salinger, his Tobacco Road and God's Little Acre have been admired—and sometimes reviled—for the hard-hitting realism of his frank depictions of the poverty stricken South in the early 20th century.

Hetty Jane Dunaway

Walt Disney came to Dunaway Gardens to catch the act of this 1920s stage actress, Hetty Jane. She was a new bride in the 1920s when her husband announced he decided to move the couple from Atlanta to his community home of Roscoe. Hetty promptly shook her head and said, “I’m not living down here!” However, on the promise that she could create whatever she wanted on their land, she agreed to make the move. She and her husband spent the rest of their days entertaining celebrities like Walt Disney and Minnie Pearl at Dunaway Gardens.

Our History

Salbide - Reese - Swope House

Oak Hill Cemetery

Coweta County was once part of the Creek Nation, named for the tribe headed by Chief William McIntosh, who relinquished lands to the federal government in the 1825 Treaty of Indian Springs. McIntosh was slain by an irate group of fellow Creeks at his home on the Chattahoochee River. Legend has it that McIntosh received gold in exchange for the lands. The gold was supposedly buried but was never found.

By 1840, the beginning of the golden era in the South, orderly streets lined with mansions and cottages reflected the growing prosperity—the railroads brought even greater fortune.

Chattahoochee River

Chief William McIntosh

DISCOVER COWETA COUNTY

The Civil War caused a slowing in growth as sawmills fell silent, the railroads became part of the war effort and cotton production severely diminished. Confederate General Joe Wheeler routed brigades of Union troops in the July 1864 Battle of Brown's Mill, located southwest of Newnan. Local churches, private homes, College Temple and the courthouse were turned into makeshift hospitals with wounded from both armies being treated.

By the 20th Century a boom in growth began and continues today.

Downtown Newnan

Our Community

Downtown Newnan

Newnan is known as the City of Homes. We invite you to explore our historic downtown.

Newnan

The City of Newnan was incorporated in 1828. It is named for General Daniel Newnan, a North Carolina native who was a soldier and later became Georgia Secretary of State and a United States Congressman.

During the Civil War, Newnan was a hospital town for both the Blue and the Gray. At one time

10,000 soldiers were being hospitalized throughout the city.

Tours

A self-guided driving tour brochure is available at the Visitors Center. The tour will take you past homes representing the antebellum and Victorian styles featuring towers, balconies dripping with gingerbread trim, bay windows, wrap-around porches, and stained and leaded glass windows. A guided tour can also be arranged at the local Visitors Center.

EXPERIENCE COWETA COUNTY

Movie Backdrop

Downtown has become a popular location for movies including made-for-TV hits October Road, Murder in Coweta County, and feature films Driving Miss Daisy, Fried Green Tomatoes and Sweet Home Alabama.

Historic Downtown

You will find a vibrant town square full of shops, restaurants, and places to sit down and enjoy the day. Brick-lined sidewalks and ornate streetlamps, accented by beautiful landscaping, make the downtown area extremely pedestrian friendly. More shops and restaurants are within easy walking distance in the nine blocks of National Register - listed commercial district that radiate from the Courthouse Square.

Two houses in the downtown Newnan shopping district have received the Excellence in Restoration Award from the Georgia Trust for Historic Preservation.

Parrot-Camp-Saucy House

The City of Homes

Newnan is called the “City of Homes” for good reason. There are six historic districts, all on the National Register of Historic Places and containing some of Georgia’s most beautiful homes and commercial buildings.

Redneck Gourmet

Shopping & Dining

Newnan’s downtown square invites shoppers to browse the unique wares of its charming shops and enjoy the delectable tastes and aromas of its signature restaurants.

Major Long House

Old Town Sharpsburg

Old Town Sharpsburg

Highway 16/54

Founded in 1825 and incorporated in 1871, Sharpsburg was named for a judge—Elias Sharp who owned one of the first homes. Sharpsburg was a thriving small town up until the early 1900s with cotton gins, warehouses, a drug store, a bank, a blacksmith shop, a general store, and a post office. The Depression in the '20s began the decline in both business and population. Today, this historic town still reflects the past. Stroll through the Old Town and shop for gifts and antiques. A treasure awaits you!

Turin

Highway 16 East

Legend has it that Turin was named for Turin, Italy. This area is known for agriculture, beginning in the 1800s with cotton being king. Turin remains true to its agriculture heritage. There is an annual tractor pull and festival every summer.

Senoia

Highway 16 & 85

Legend has Senoia named for Chief William McIntosh's mother, Senoya He-ne-ha. McIntosh ceded the land to the state in the early 1800s. Senoia developed from a cluster of farms into an 1827 railroad community. With its collection of architectural treasures, most of the town comprises a historic district listed on the National Register of Historic Places, with 150 Greek Revival, antebellum, and Victorian structures and homes. Senoia was the setting for movies such as Fried Green Tomatoes, Mama Flora's Family and The War. There is a driving tour brochure of Senoia available at the Visitors Center.

Dedicated to preservation and conservation of the cultural, historical and architectural African-American heritage of Coweta County, the Alliance operates the Coweta County Heritage Museum and Research Center and serves as a genealogy workroom for records, research and artifacts. The museum is housed in a restored shotgun-style house, and is adjacent to the Farmer Street Cemetery which is thought to be the largest slave cemetery in the South.

Coweta County Courthouse

200 Court Square, Newnan

This 1904 Classical architecture reflects both the Italian influence of architect Andrea Palladio in its central crossing plan and English architect Christopher Wren in its symmetrical classicism. Traditionally cornices and pediments are of stone, but stamped and formed copper was used. The most interesting feature is the dome, reminiscent of the famed Gibbs Radcliff Library. Rising more than 100 feet above the Court Square, it features clocks on all four sides. The dome is covered with copper to match the cornice, pediment and railings. The architect was James Golucke, the son of a German immigrant who settled in Georgia.

Oak Hill Cemetery

Oak Hill Cemetery

96 Bullsboro Drive, Newnan

The final resting place of soldiers who did not survive the Civil War.

In the Confederate section there are 269 graves of soldiers who died here in 1863 and 1864 when Newnan was a hospital town. Due to the good records of the hospitals, only two soldiers are unknown. Every state in the Confederacy is represented in these burials. Also here are graves of Revolutionary War soldiers. Many notables are buried here including two governors of Georgia, Ellis Arnall and William Atkinson.

Oak Grove Plantation & Gardens

The Battle of Brown's Mill

3 miles South of Newnan

On July 27, 1864, Brig. Gen. E.M. McCook with 3,600 Federal cavalry began a raid to destroy railroads south of Atlanta and release 32,000 Federal prisoners at Andersonville. July 30, Maj. Gen. Joseph Wheeler, with 1,400 Confederate cavalry caught and routed the Federals, captured about 2,000 men, several ambulances, a full battery and released 500 Confederate prisoners. Here General Wheeler whipped the pick of the Federal cavalry and saved Newnan from capture and possible destruction, indicated by a historical marker at the Courthouse.

The Plantation is on the National Register of Historic Places. Circa 1835, this house is a Federal Vernacular, four-over-four, central hallway with a full third-story attic. In addition to the Arnold family cemetery, which lies approximately 40 yards from the house, there are numerous garden areas on the premises. A gazebo made with columns that once held up the back stoop of the house is adjacent to the romantic perennial garden. There are four themed gardens over 20 acres: the herb garden, pool garden, patience garden and vegetable garden adjoin the site of the sunken garden.
