Our Museum

Housed in a former jail dating back to 1892, the LaGrange Art Museum is known as one of Georgia’s best regional museums. From Benny Andrews to Andy Warhol, from Douglas Kirkland to Elizabeth Catlett, we collect and present the works of emerging and established contemporary artists – all done to encourage creativity and creative thought.

The Art Museum has been providing educational programming to the Chattahoochee Valley for over 50 years. We believe that art and creativity bring people together and allow us to see and think differently.

Today, as school systems across the state come to terms with reductions in art and music programs in local schools, the Museum’s mission to provide educational programming becomes even more critical.

The Museum has improved exhibitions, expanded education programs, and provides ongoing community art camps, lectures and family programs – all of which play a leading role in cultural tourism and economic development in LaGrange.
