THE HERNDON HOME MUSEUM

The Herndon Home, designed by Adrienne McNeil Herndon, was built between 1908 and 1910, with Alonzo Franklin Herndon acting as general contractor.

The formally-composed building is constructed with multi-colored brick and features a two-story entry portico supported by Corinthian columns.

A sterling example of upper income dwellings in the early 1900's, the Home's interior draws upon various design traditions, including the renaissance revival forms of the reception hall and dining room, and the Rococo detailing of the music room.
